Multi-Year Work Plan: Holocaust Memorial Days Report of the IHRA Visit to Ireland

January 2013

In December 2012, the Plenary approved the multi-year work plan proposal from the Steering Committee on Holocaust Memorial Days. This plan seeks to coordinate a visit of the Advisor to the IHRA to participate in programs related to Holocaust Memorial Day with a view to foster Holocaust education, remembrance and research, promote the goals of the Stockholm Declaration, and raise awareness about the work of the IHRA.

The programs were planned for January and April 2013 to coincide with International Holocaust Remembrance Day and other national days of remembrance in IHRA member countries. They would be geared to a variety of target audiences, such as the diplomatic corps, university personnel and students, policy makers, representatives of NGOs, and civil servants, among others.

Spain and Ireland offered to host visits of the Advisor to the IHRA in January 2013. The IHRA delegations, in coordination with local partners in the respective host countries, were responsible for the development of the respective programming, including remembrance activities and ceremonies.

IHRA Visit to Ireland – January 2013

As the first aspect of the program in Ireland, the Advisor to the IHRA and the Communication and Program Officer attended the National Holocaust Memorial Day Commemoration Event on 27 January 2013. The event was hosted by the Lord Mayor of Dublin in Mansion House and featured a varied and content-rich program. Speakers included a number of governmental officials, academics, journalists, civil society representatives, students, and Holocaust survivors. The Advisor to the IHRA read the Stockholm Declaration and Ireland's membership in the IHRA was emphasized. The ceremony was attended by over 700 guests and received positive coverage in all the major newspapers (an example is available here:

The Advisor to the IHRA and the Communication and Program Officer met with several governmental representatives during their visit to Dublin, including Mr. David Donoghue, Political Director of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, the chief adviser to Minister for Justice and Equality Alan Shatter, and the Minister for Education and Skills Ruairi Quinn.

All three ministries are involved in Holocaust education, remembrance and research in various capacities. Minister Shatter and Minister Quinn also take a personal interest in these issues, with Minister Quinn previously serving as the head of the Holocaust Education Trust Ireland.

Ireland currently holds the Presidency of the Council of European Union, and in this capacity Minister Shatter has proposed a more coordinated and focused approach in confronting racism, antisemitism, and prejudice across Europe. He has requested that the European Commission facilitate this and report back to EU Member States on measures that might be implemented. In addition, a conference for participants from across the EU is planned for May to give further consideration to these issues.

The Ministry of Justice is also responsible for equality, and the senior staff members on this portfolio also attended the meeting with the chief adviser of Minister Shatter. The Advisor to the IHRA discussed several ideas and strategies that could be utilized to expand equality education amongst young people, particularly in a school context, and the Ministry officials were open to all suggestions.

Ministry of Education officials were also interested in working in closer cooperation with the IHRA to develop further initiatives in Holocaust education. During the meeting the Minister for Education reviewed the current curriculum structure in secondary schools and his staff members provided several helpful examples of Holocaust education programs taught in schools around Ireland. The Minister for Education stated that he would look in to possible opportunities for cooperation and be in further contact with the IHRA in this regard.

The Advisor to the IHRA and the Communication and Program Officer also met with religious representatives from the Dublin Inter-Faith Forum and with academics at Trinity College Dublin. The IHRA's Grant Programme was explained and emphasized during all meetings in order to reach out to future potential applicants.

A number of members of Ireland's delegation to the IHRA actively participated in the various meetings and events, including Zuleika Rodgers from Trinity College and Kevin McCarthy from the Department of Education and Skills, among others. Their expertise in all of the IHRA's areas of activity, dedication to the IHRA, and participation during the visit were appreciated.

The Advisor to the IHRA additionally gave an address to the Irish Jewish Historical Society and members of the public at the Irish Jewish Museum in Dublin and attended a Trinity College Dublin seminar on Holocaust representation.

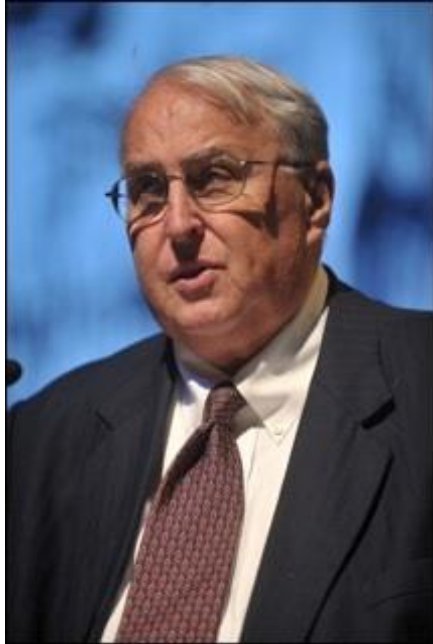

The visit demonstrated Ireland’s clear commitment to these issues and also provided a good opportunity to meet with a variety of stakeholders in Ireland. The Advisor to the IHRA had the chance to learn about a number of governmental and NGO programs and discuss potential areas of cooperation with the IHRA, particularly related to educational initiatives.

It is hoped that the visit helped raise the profile of the IHRA in Ireland and encouraged further efforts in this field. The IHRA looks forward to further opportunities to work together with Ireland in promoting Holocaust education, remembrance and research.
